Introduction

Shared Writing Instructional Model (SWIM) coaching is designed to transfer the critical components of SWIM professional learning into practice so that teachers can apply the SWIM Cycle, as illustrated in the graphic below, to Plan, Deliver, and Evaluate student writing. The goal of SWIM coaching is to support teachers in planning, delivering, and evaluating high quality, specially designed writing instruction so that ALL students may grow in their writing development.

Purpose

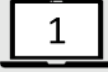

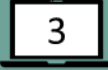

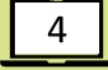

This guide provides coaching tools and strategies consistent with the SWIM model that support the quality and fidelity of SWIM instruction. The SWIM coaching guide includes descriptions of 1) intended audience for this guide, 2) SWIM professional learning, coaching, and community of practice, 3) SWIM concepts, skills, or knowledge to be coached, 4) the SWIM coaching model, 5) SWIM coaching touchpoints, 6) SWIM coaching logs, 7) SWIM lesson reflections and observations, and 8) SWIM coaching menu of options.

Audience

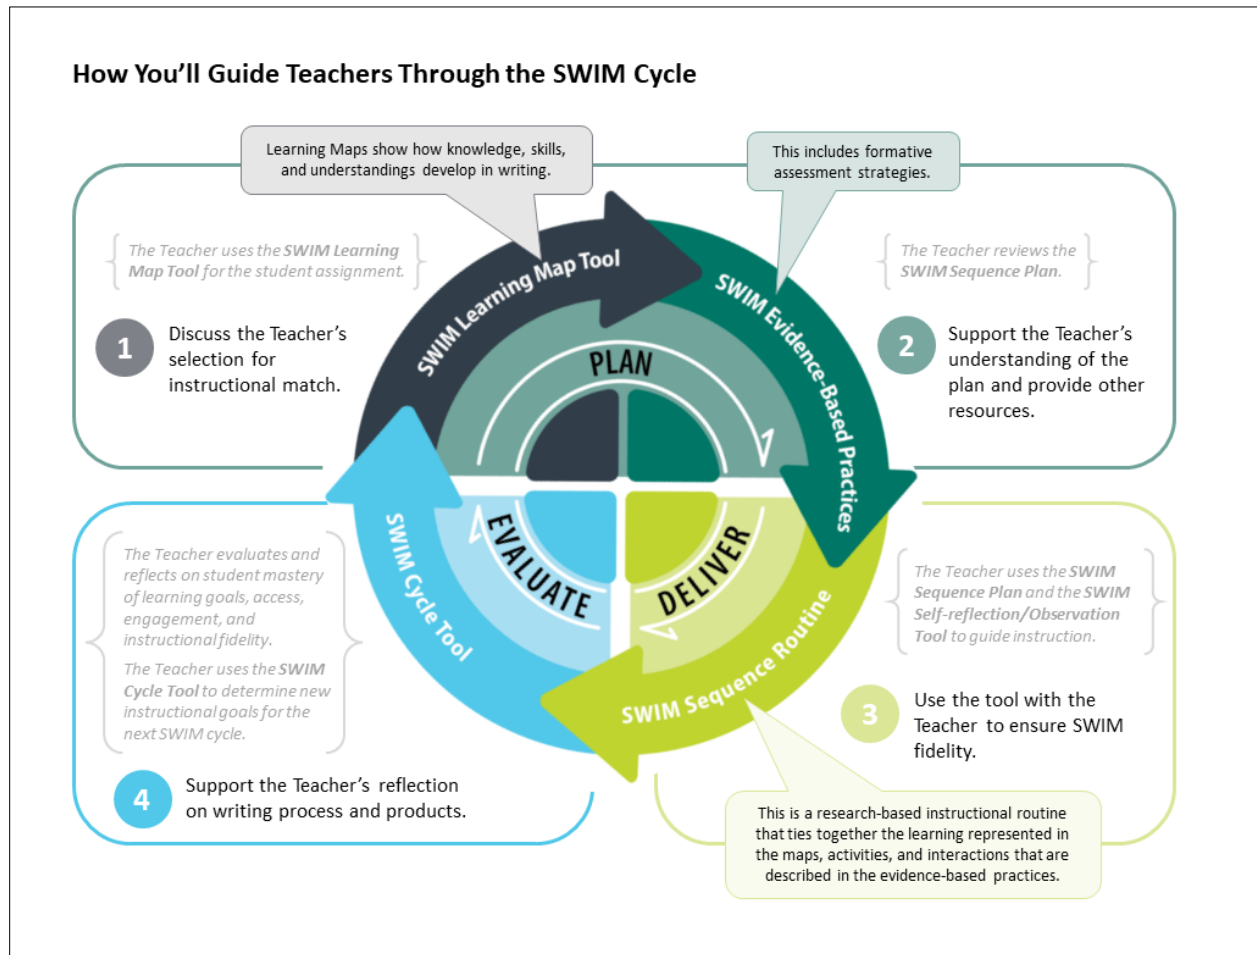

The SWIM coaching guide is intended to be used by coaches who support teachers of students with intellectual disabilities as they work toward grade-level general or alternate academic expectations in writing as part of English language arts.

SWIM Professional Learning, Coaching, and Community of Practice

The following graphic outlines the relationship between SWIM professional learning modules, case study activities with associated tools, SWIM coaching, and community of practice.

SWIM Concepts, Skills, or Knowledge to be Coached

Coaches will support teachers in developing the following concepts, skills, or knowledge in:

- The SWIM Learning Map Tool to identify conceptually rich and appropriate instructional goals and SWIM Sequence Plan to begin a SWIM Cycle.
- Evidence-based practices specific to student writing levels.
- Universal Design for Learning strategies.
- The SWIM five-step instructional sequence routine with formative assessment practices before, during, and after instruction.
- The SWIM Cycle Tool for evaluation and reflection on student mastery of learning goals, engagement, access, and instructional fidelity to determine instructional pathway for next SWIM Cycle.

SWIM Coaching Model

The SWIM coaching model is designed to support collaborative actions or touch points between the teacher and coach throughout a SWIM Cycle. During the SWIM Cycle, teachers and coaches will identify goals, learn instructional strategies to deliver the SWIM sequence routine, and evaluate student progress at the end of a cycle. With the SWIM model of coaching, teachers will experience deeper learning on writing instruction to impact student outcomes.

SWIM Coaching Touchpoints

SWIM coaching touch points are reoccurring coaching conversations at each phase of the SWIM Cycle with the goal of facilitating teachers in planning, delivering, and evaluating student writing. Touchpoints generate and support the development of a student case study. A student case study activities plan is in the Appendix of this document.

Coaching touchpoints are aligned to SWIM professional learning modules 3–5 that address the SWIM Cycle. These coaching touchpoints can be used to develop a coaching schedule as teachers work through the SWIM professional learning. For each of these modules, teacher and coach actions, along with reflective questions, are provided in the following tables. Coaches are encouraged to review teacher student case study activities plan prior to coaching sessions and generate their own reflective questions and activities based on teacher need.

SWIM Coaching Log

The SWIM coaching log is an integral component of coaching and documents the coaching touchpoints throughout the SWIM Cycle. Data gathered from SWIM coaching logs can be used to summarize 1) the content of coaching conversations, 2) the duration and frequency of coaching sessions, 3) the extent teachers implemented the SWIM sequence and SWIM formative assessment practices as designed and intended, 4) the extent of which SWIM professional learning and coaching help teachers develop knowledge of the SWIM components, and 5) the extent in which teachers completed the SWIM Cycle. The SWIM coaching log is in the Appendix of this document.

SWIM Lesson Reflections and Observations

During the Deliver phase of the SWIM Cycle, the SWIM Self-Reflection and Observation Tool will be used. Teachers will use the tool for self-reflection on their strengths and areas of need for instructional growth. Coaches or other educators will use the tool during lesson observations. Lesson observations may occur in person or through video recordings. In-person lesson observations are recorded for teacher self-reflection. Given the instructional connection between and across each of the steps, it is recommended that teacher self-reflections and lesson observations occur at each step of the five-step SWIM sequence. The collaborative actions between teacher self-reflection and coaches' observation and feedback are illustrated in the following graphic. The SWIM Self-Reflection and Observation Tool is in the SWIM Resource Collection. It can be accessed on the SWIM Website.

As teachers and coaches work on improving fidelity of SWIM instruction, they engage in a cycle of teacher self-reflection, coach observation feedback, and goal-setting for future instruction as illustrated in the above graphic.

SWIM Coaching Menu of Options

The SWIM coaching model allows for flexibility and personalization, including in-person or virtual coaching, scheduling of professional learning, and coaching sessions around teacher needs and local context. These include 1:1 individual, small group coaching, building or district professional learning community, and a community of practice. A SWIM coaching menu of options support the development of a SWIM professional learning and coaching plan. An example of this plan is included in the Appendix.

Example SWIM Professional Learning, Coaching, and CoP Plan

The following table is an example of how SWIM professional learning, coaching, and community of practice activities can be delivered to educators in a manner that is consistent with job embedded learning which supports the development of a student case study. In this example, SWIM coaching, professional learning community, and a community of practice are integrated before, during, and after the SWIM professional learning module sequence. These include 1) readiness activities for SWIM implementation, 2) follow-up coaching from professional learning, especially after each lesson of the SWIM five-step sequence to address misconceptions and support for instructional fidelity, 3) professional learning community for peer review of SWIM lessons, and 4) a community of practice to explore how SWIM supports comprehensive literacy instruction. Activities may occur within a building or district professional learning community, small group coaching, or through another structure or mode of delivery depending on the local site context.
